Answering the Call: Lottie's Mission to China

In 1873, after several years of preparation and study, Lottie Moon embarked on a life-changing journey that would mark the beginning of her extraordinary missionary work in China. She joined the Southern Baptist Convention's Foreign Mission Board and arrived in Tengchow (modern-day Penglai), China, with a heartfelt commitment to sharing the love of Jesus and serving the Chinese people.

Lottie's dedication to the mission was awe-inspiring. She embraced the Chinese culture, diligently learning the language and immersing herself fully in the local community. Her genuine care for the well-being of the Chinese people earned her their respect and trust, opening doors for her to establish countless schools and churches throughout the rural areas of China.

Remarkably, Lottie's selflessness extended beyond spreading the gospel. She quickly realized that the Chinese people were suffering from extreme poverty and famine. Unable to ignore their plight, Lottie initiated efforts to provide relief aid to those in need. Despite facing personal hardships and even hunger herself, she willingly sacrificed her own comfort to ensure that the hungry were fed and the suffering were sheltered.

Her impassioned plea led to the establishment of the Lottie Moon Christmas Offering, an annual collection that continues to this day, providing crucial funding for global missionary work.

Another testament to Lottie's influential legacy is the founding of the Woman's Missionary Union (WMU) in 1888. This organization, originally established to support missionary work, has since transformed into a powerful force in promoting Christian missions and empowering women in various areas of ministry.

Moreover, Lottie Moon's work has not been forgotten by the nation she dedicated her life to serving. China recognizes her deep love and profound influence, as evidenced by the gratitude expressed by the Chinese Baptist community and the establishment of the Lottie Moon Memorial in Penglai, China, where she was buried.
